

About homeopathic and anthroposophic medicinal products

Millions use them

- Homeopathy is the second largest system of medicine in the world.
- Three out of four Europeans know about homeopathy, and of these, 20% use it for their health care; there is growing demand for these products.
- 8% of the EU population has used homeopathy in the last 12 months.
- Patients express very high levels of satisfaction with these treatments.

They are effective

- A substantial body of scientific research demonstrates the effectiveness of these forms of treatment.
- A growing body of published clinical studies confirm their real-world effectiveness.
- 70% of those that use homeopathy experience improvements in health.

They are safe

- They are used in primary and clinical care across Europe.
- They can be prescribed alongside other forms of medicine.
- Users choose these medicines because they are safe.
- Adverse drug reactions are reported only very rarely.

Homeopathic and conventional medicinal products have the same scrutiny in terms of their manufacture, distribution and pharmacovigilance.

European Commission 2018

A strong foundation in EU law

- Specific EU legislation for homeopathic medicinal products has deep roots in their broad use in the Member States.
- Most Member States officially confirm a market in their country.
- Patients and prescribers use them in all Member States.
- Legislation is based on the EU principles of free trade and freedom of choice.
- The European Pharmacopoeia and other national pharmacopoeias determine the quality standards for the starting materials and manufacture of these products.

They bring public health benefits

- These long-established therapies and their medicinal products have a role to play in the face of major health challenges in the EU.
- They offer valuable treatment options in support of EU health policy goals on multimorbidity, polypharmacy, chronic diseases and an ageing population.
- They can contribute to safe and effective strategies to reduce the use of antibiotics.
- They can, and already do, contribute to the sustainability of health systems.

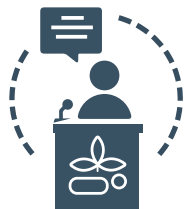

EU – a global centre of expertise

- Homeopathic and anthroposophic medicinal products have been safely on the market in Europe for decades.
- Companies offer a broad spectrum of products for individual patients, many with low- or no profit margin.
- The industry is characterised by huge variety with hundreds of different natural starting materials.
- The sector employs about 10,000 people in the EU with multiple micro, small and medium-size businesses.
